TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will Lindhorst

MAKING A CIGARET RISE AND FALL IN AN INK BOTTLE

You must have a cigarette, a pin, a piece of black thread, and an ink bottle to do this trick. Tie one end of the thread to the head of the pin and the other end to a button on your vest. Push the pin up through one end of the cigarette, so that just the head protrudes, and you are ready to do the trick. Stand away from your audience, and if possible wear a dark suit, so the thread cannot be seen. Hold the bottle in one hand, and drop the cigarette into it with the other, but have the pin on the bottom when you do this. Then slowly extend the arm holding the bottle, and the thread will be drawn taut causing the cigarette to rise in the bottle. Bring the arm inward again and the cigarette will fall back into the bottle. As the thread cannot be seen, it will appear as though some mysterious force is moving the cigarette.

OLD BY-LAWS KEPT ON STATUTE BOOKS

The Bank of England decided, at the last meeting of the general court, to change certain by-laws in order to bring them into conformity with present-day practice. With surprising celerity, it proceeded to cancel a regulation dating from 1800 which provided that all employees of the bank should be elected annually by ballot by the court of directors. Another change was made in a by-law last revised in 1733, which made it necessary that cash not required for current needs should be kept under three or more locks, and that the keys should be held by three or more persons selected from a group consisting of the governor, vice governor and the directors.

In this country multitudes of anachronistic, forgotten, and absurd laws remain upon our statute books and are occasionally unearthed by some enterprising troublemaker who finds it advantageous to bring them to the attention of the public authorities. As a people, however, we have no passionate desire to cling to outmoded institutions, whereas the English display a pronounced weakness for old forms and observances out of dislike for change or from positive love of traditional practices. These national characteristics have saved the English from some of the mistakes that we often make because of a restless desire for novelty. It is impossible, however, to discover any advantage in the retention of the Seventeenth and early Eighteenth century banking by-laws in the Twentieth century, which are ludicrously unsuited to present-day conditions and productive only of needless trouble.—New York Journal of Commerce.

"ENGLISH," BUT NOT THE SAME SPEECH

In two centuries the English-speaking world will not be speaking English, according to H. C. Bailey, British writer. What it will speak is to be "a strange compromise between future British English and future American English," a lingo, perhaps mercifully, hidden by Providence from our imagination. He adds:

"This prophecy is not mine. It was made by a lecturer in phonetics, A. Lloyd James. His reason for the hybridization of our language is that there are many more people in the world today who speak American English than there are speaking British English."

"Here we have one of those undeniable statements which in fact is fallacious. America has many more citizens than this country, but they do not all speak the same tongue."

"The inexperienced English ear could detect, even if their own novelists did not insist upon it, differences in the speech of the American from the eastern states, from the South and from the Middle West. Which is the true American English?"

Birds Farmers' Friends.
Gulls aided farmers at Clear Lake (Calif.) bird refuge last summer when a colony of these birds checked an invasion of caterpillars of the white-lined sphinx moth on an 800-acre stand of rye, says the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture. The birds were discovered carrying the worms to a nearby colony to feed their young. They ate so many of the caterpillars that at the end of the month only five acres of rye had been destroyed.

Slimming Causes Slump.
Women are blamed for the slump in the potato business in Great Britain, declare leaders in the industry who have been trying to find a way to stop efforts to be slimmer. Fewer "spuds" are being eaten today than before the World war, they say, and since the food for dieting came in and doctors said potatoes were fattening, the slump has been on. Potato growers are looking forward to confirmation of reports that slim figures are going out of style.

Home Made.
"I fear I got mixed in this paralytic recipe."
"En?"
"Got some of the ingredients twisted."
"I don't think you can hurt a paralytic recipe, my dear."

Emphasis on One.
At a two-plate recital by Meier and Patterson, a member of the audience remarked: "How beautifully they play together!"
"Yes, especially Patterson," answered his neighbor.—Tromboners, or Musical Anecdotes.

Jim—Well, then, why are you washing your face?

His Mistake.
"Daughter, your hair is all messed up. Did that young man kiss you against your will?"
"No, thank be did, mother."

"Seven Seas" Figurative of All World's Oceans

The "seven seas" is a figurative term denoting all the seas and oceans of the world. It is often explained that the seven seas are the Arctic, the Antarctic, the North and South Pacific, the North and South Atlantic, and the Indian ocean. This explanation is arbitrary. The term need not in fact be taken literally. It was part of the vernacular of several nations long before some of the oceans named were known to the inhabitants of Europe and Asia. The seven seas are referred to in the literature of the ancient Hindus, Chinese, Persians, Romans and other nations. In each case the term refers to different bodies of water. Sometimes it refers to mythical seas. To the Persians the seven seas were the streams forming the Oxus river; the Hindus applied the name to bodies of water in the Punjab. Near Venice, Italy, is a group of salt water lagoons which the Romans called Septem maria, the Latin phrase for seven seas. In modern times the phrase the "seven seas" was popularized by Rudyard Kipling, who used it as the title of a volume of poems published in 1900. The poet himself said the term might be regarded as referring to the seven oceans, although it was a very old figurative name for all the waters of the world.

Cherish John Wesley's Bible as Beyond Price

John Wesley's Bible is one of the most cherished treasures of the Methodist church. It was handed to Dr. Scott Lidgett as a symbol of the Wesleyan Methodist church, on his induction as first president of the united church. The Bible which the great evangelist carried with him is quite an ordinary pocket volume, except that it is very old. Years ago it used to be the practice of each Wesleyan president to carry the Bible with him everywhere he went. It has been in every town, village and hamlet in England.

Now the precious book has a home of steel, thief-proof, fire-proof in the safe in the Methodist bookshop in City road, London, there to remain until a new president is chosen as head of the Methodist church.

Wesley's Bible could have been sold for almost any price from time to time. America longed to possess it, but the Methodist church even in its poorest day was never so poor as to part with the little thumb-marked book in the shabby, tattered leather cover.—London Mail.

The Two Minutes Silence.
The impressive two-minute silence on Armistice or Remembrance day was adopted on the initiative of Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, who placed the proposal before the late Lord Milner. In a letter to Sir Percy, dated January 30, 1920, Lord Stamfordham wrote: "The king, who learns you are shortly returning to South Africa, desires me to assure you that he ever gratefully remembers that the idea of the two minutes' pause on Armistice day was due to your initiative—a suggestion which was readily adopted and carried out with heart-felt sympathy throughout the empire."—Montreal Family Herald.

Never Clean Old Coins.
A coin catalogue says that one should "never attempt to clean, polish or improve a coin. Cleaning always detracts from the value and has been known to make a good coin practically worthless."

The teachers were also recipients of many gifts. The school vacation will be until January 3, 1933.

Norbert Scherer was a guest of his uncle, Matthew Madden, in Kingston, on Sunday.

Joseph Scherer, Sr., has recovered from grip which confined him to his house last week.

Mrs. Clara Evans is attending her aunt, Mrs. Frank Miller, of Port Jervis, who is ill at her home.

The Misses Grace and Josephine Lutz of Kingston, Private First Class Louis Jones and Private William Burris of West Point were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scherer and family.

There will be no church service in the M. E. Church on Sunday morning. The Christmas exercises will be held in the evening during which the pastor, the Rev. W. E. Gebhard, will deliver a Christmas sermon.

Not Advisable to Glut Hog Market

Breeders Cautioned Against Possibility of Big Oversupply.

Extensive Agricultural Census Shows

Any material increase in the number of hogs in the United States is liable to result in a considerable surplus of pork in 1933 and 1934, unless there is a marked increase in consumer demand at home and abroad.

Hogs are low in price and growers must decide wisely how many sows to breed. Apparently an increase, even in eastern Colorado is justified only where conditions are favorable to low production costs.

It is good practice to use enough sows so that sows will be bred within narrow date limits, in order to assure a uniform pig crop.

When corn is worth 17 cents a bushel and hogs $2.50 per 100 pounds, the corn-hog ratio is 147. Normally the corn-hog ratio is 115. Any ratio above that normal is favorable to the hog feeder, since corn brings a higher price fed to hogs than when sold. To find the corn-hog ratio divide the price of hogs per 100 pounds by the price of corn per bushel.

Supplies of hogs available for slaughter in the next seven months are somewhat smaller than a year ago. Abundant cheap feed in the corn belt is likely to result in heavier hogs going to market this fall and winter, and the saving of more sows and gilts for breeding in the fall.

The number of hogs slaughtered reached a new high record in September. The spring pig crop was 7 per cent lower than a year ago and 4 per cent under the 5-year average, but there is a slight increase in the number of sows to farrow this fall compared to last year.

Cold storage supplies of pork, beef, poultry, lamb and mutton are smaller than usual. Exports of pork and lard continue at low levels as a result of an upward trend in European hog production.

Corn Found Resistant

to Stewart's Disease

Stewart's disease, or bacterial wilt of corn has appeared this year over a wider territory than ever before, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. It has attacked some varieties of dent corn this year, although the greatest injury appears in early sweet corn varieties. Purdue university and the federal department have developed a variety of Golden Bantam corn that is resistant to the disease. Hot weather favors the development of the disease and it has been found as far north as Minnesota and reached southern Ontario.

After the disease is established the only satisfactory method of fighting it is to grow resistant varieties. The disease is carried on the seed and is found in the soil after a diseased crop has been grown. The bacterial parasite, which clogs the water vessels of the plant leaves, causes wilting, which is first shown by yellow streaks in the leaves, and gradually the disease develops until the entire plant is killed.

Protect Fruit Trees

The only safe way to protect rabbits from gnawing the bark of the trunks of young fruit trees is to wrap the base of the tree trunks from the ground to a height of about 18 to 20 inches, or the space between the ground and the lowest branches. Where the branches are less than 18 inches above the soil, the wrappers should include both trunk and branches to a height of about 18 to 20 inches. Various kinds of wrapping material may be used. Some of the most common are 1-inch mesh poultry wire, galvanized window screen wire, galvanized wire netting having three or four meshes to the inch, old news papers, gunny sacks torn in strips 6 to 8 inches wide and cornstalks. Wood veneer wrappers, patented wire wrappers, tarred paper and building paper may be bought and used.

Study Export Fruit

To find the most effective methods of shipping apples and pears to foreign markets, the United States Department of Agriculture has made test shipments and observed their handling all the way from Pacific Northwest orchards to ships and then to British markets.

The department expects its observations to be especially valuable to exporters and also to the ship companies. Frequently when fruit arrives abroad in a spoiled condition, exporters blame the ship companies for careless handling, while the companies often contend that the fruit was in poor condition when shipped. The department made two test shipments last year and is continuing the investigations this year.

Beet Tops for Feed

Fresh cut beet tops, a growth-producing feed, have an average moisture content of about 85 per cent. It is usually found that these tops, composed of 25 per cent crown and 75 per cent green leaves, represent 65 to 70 per cent the weight of the beet. The actual feeding value of the tops depends largely on weather conditions and methods used in handling them. During the last few years the practice of stacking beet tops with spray has given satisfactory results.

BANANA DISHES

NOVEL recipes are always welcomed by the housewife who is constantly looking for appetizing dishes to please the tastes of her family.

Banana Marmalade.

Peel and slice bananas using two pounds of bananas and the same amount of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Put into an earthen dish and let stand one hour. Turn into a preserving pan and cook gently, stirring constantly as soon as it thickens. Test by dropping a little on a plate; if it sets it is ready to pour into jars. Serve with toast at tea.

Bananas Cooked in Cranberry Juice.

Wash a pint of cranberries and cover with a cupful of cold water. Cook quickly ten minutes and press through a sieve. Halve six large bananas lengthwise and cover with the juice of half a lemon. Add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar to the hot berry juice, stir well and pour over the bananas. Place in a hot oven and bake until the fruit is tender. Remove to a glass dish and cool. The cranberry jelly will make a thick, rich sauce for the bananas.

Fried Bananas With Bacon or Sausage.

Cut each banana into halves crosswise, then lengthwise, roll in flour, cook in hot bacon or sausage fat and serve around the bacon or sausage.

Banana Muffins.

Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-half cupful of brown sugar, one beaten egg, two mashed bananas, two cupfuls of flour, one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of milk. Cream the butter and sugar together, add egg well beaten and the mashed pulp of the bananas. Add the dry ingredients, alternating with the milk. Mix well; drop into greased tins and bake in a medium oven twelve minutes.

Banana Pie.

Bake a shell and fill with thinly sliced bananas which have been lightly sweetened, and a teaspoonful of lemon juice added to them. Cover with a rich, thick custard, cooked and cooled, and top with a few spoonfuls of whipped cream. Serve well chilled.

Rose Coral Costly

The general run of coral which is used in the manufacture of necklaces and other fancy objects, is particularly valuable, the average cost being about a dollar and a half an ounce. But one type of coral, the rose coral, because of its comparative rarity, is highly expensive, costing several hundred dollars an ounce.

National Santa Claus 'Carry On' In Foreign Lands

Europe, Rich In Yule-Tide Tradition, Opens Scant Purse To Give Christmas Cheer

London (AP).—Christmas-tide this year found the old world with a rather scant purse but as rich as ever in tradition.

From these northerly British Isles, home of the boar's head, the Yule log and the Mince pudding, to the southerly shores of the Mediterranean, the old customs of each race have been carried out as thoroughly as economics conditions would permit.

The Christmas spirit, personified by Santa Claus in America, by Father Christmas here, Pere Noel in France, St. Nicholas in Germany and the wise men and patriarchal shepherds in predominantly Catholic or Greek Orthodox countries to the south, has had its ready rule.

Everywhere thoughts have turned to the children and the home and where distress threatened a bleak holiday season to families of jobless workers, steps have been taken to see that food, warmth and gifts of some sort should mark the day as one apart from the rest of the year.

MADRID'S POOR GET EX-ROYAL RAIMENT.

Madrid (AP).—Many poor children in Spain will play with royal toys and wear royal clothes after this Christmas.

The custodian of the ex-royal properties announced that thousands of toys and garments that belonged to the family of ex-King Alfonso would be divided among the provinces for distribution to the poor.

Each country has its own version of the Santa Claus legend. France's Pere Noel is shown asking a Paris policeman how to find his way to the homes of good children. A modern St. Nicholas reaches Berlin by airplane and England's Father Christmas arrives in a sleigh drawn by a snow-decked pony.

CAROLING CHILDREN CAJOLE RUMANIANS.

Bucharest (AP).—Rumania's children count pennies and feast on roast pork Christmas day. Youngsters in the city go from house to house and singing over roofs to mark out a decorated tree. At the foot is collecting coins, mince pies and candy for good children.

PAPA NOEL CLIMBS OVER FRENCH ROOFS.

Paris (AP).—"Papa Noel," the French Santa Claus, has been in search of a fortnight, knocking at thousands of homes, but he has not yet been seen. He is supposed to be climbing over roofs to mark out a decorated tree. At the foot is collecting coins, mince pies and candy for good children.

GERMAN CHRISTMAS CENTERS ON TREES.

Berlin (AP).—This Teutonic land, the source of Christmas customs known throughout the world, considers no Christmas tree complete at this season without a decorated tree. At the foot is collecting coins, mince pies and candy for good children.

WISE MEN REPLACE SANTA CLAUS IN ITALY.

Rome (AP).—Santa Claus is virtually unknown to Italian children and gift day is Epiphany, the feast of the Three Wise Men.

It comes January 6 this year and then on the Sunday following gifts will pour upon the youngsters in commemoration of the gold, frankincense and myrrh which the travelers laid at the feet of the Babe of Bethlehem.

Christmas, in this churchgoing nation, is chiefly a day of prayer and devout rejoicing for the birth of the Saviour and of family togetherness.

BRAZIL MAY REFORM MID-SUMMER AMAS.

Rio De Janeiro (AP).—A movement to give Brazil a warm weather Christmas instead of the type of the northern celebration now in vogue, has been started by Christmas in America, prominent writer.

It is still, says Senhor Camargo Lodi, for Brazilians to adopt "Papa Noel" and place his of cotton on trees to stimulate snow while holding his weather mark the northern hemisphere's custom.

Instead, he suggests, Brazilians should revive an old colonial legend which made "Grandfather Inian" the Santa Claus of the country. This legend had it that "Grandfather Inian" got toys for children from an enormous tropical tree, far above the reach of ordinary men.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 23, 1932

CLARIFYING SHAKESPEARE.

Some British school boards, it is reported, want to re-write Shakespeare, clearing up the obscure passages for the benefit of this and coming generations of school children. The plan may not go through, for various English individuals and societies have protested promptly and vigorously and appear to be ready to defend Shakespeare's obscurity against all editors.

One of these protesters has written to the Daily Telegraph asking if it is necessary to change "Friends, Romans, countrymen: Lead me your ears, to 'Say, listen folks, this is Caesar's funeral, sure.' He supposes, bitterly, that school children today will not know the meaning of 'the wheels of Phobos,' or 'the force of temporal power.' He wonders what will be the use of reading Shakespeare after expurgation, simplification and re-writing have been carried out to a degree to satisfy the reformers and ignoramus and others too lazy to use a dictionary. A humble reader offers a compromise plan. Let all teachers say frankly, when they get to one of those obscure passages, 'Nobody, not even the scholars, knows just what that means. Let's get on to the next page where there is some very beautiful poetry.' Leaving out an obscure passage would be much better than re-writing it, since there is some question whether school boards would understand them well enough themselves to do the job.

A STATESWOMAN SPEAKS

This Lady Nancy Astor, American-British stateswoman, has a habit of saying something when she talks. Here are some remarks she got off her chest the other day in New York, a sort of farewell address to her native country as she started back to her adopted one:

"Everybody has been asking me what I thought of prohibition. I have not said what I thought, because it is too dangerous a subject. But I would just like to say this to you: That when you are dry, you seem to be very wet; and I pray that when you go wet, you may be dry."

As for the relations of Great Britain and America: "I am convinced that unless these two great democracies, with the same common law and speaking the same language, can get to understanding each other, then peace in this world—rotten with doubt, darkness and debt—is impossible. I firmly believe civilization depends more on these two countries than on any others, and I pray to God that we won't behave like barbarians."

And then a word on something still nearer her heart: "In this depression, don't forget your children. If you neglect your children, you can't build them again."

LESS COSTLY "GREETING."

The job of the official "greeter" in American cities has become much less colorful and generous. The present greeter in New York city, who has held the post since last April, says he has spent no more than $25 in welcoming celebrities to the metropolis. That sum is in striking contrast to the bills totaling between $4,000 and $5,000 which have been left over from past greeting ceremonies. The present Deputy Controller is very indignant and has decided that the city will not pay the bills unless the creditors bring legal action and win judgment. He says: "Why these charges are outrageous. We have bills here for lunches, flowers, auto hire and other things for which the city should never be asked to pay."

It is hard on the hotels, florists, auto-renting services, and others who merely complied with what were supposed to be bonafide orders. It looks a bit like defaulting or repudiating debts incurred in non-productive enterprises, but once the less important New York's extravagant welcomes to all and sundry, the famous, the truly celebrated and the merely notorious, made the cost of the nation a little heavier. Now the spectacle of the big town rolling these welcome parties socialist and republican in the pipe organ to drive home a wholesome lesson.

HUNGRY RUSSIA

Russia is far worse off agriculturally than the United States, and for the opposite reason. We are raising too much food. Russia is raising too little. The "bread of the world" is in danger of starvation this winter.

Not only is there little or no grain to export in payment for necessary imports, but the farms are depleted of live stock. The Soviet possession of kulaks—farmers owning their own farms, and therefore "capitalists"—has had its logical effect. To avoid having their live stock and poultry confiscated, the kulaks have deliberately destroyed them or kept less than half the normal supply of cattle, sheep, pigs, etc., and it will require years to restore the supply. So the country cannot feed the city, and many rural sections are in danger of starvation. Russia will have to import food now instead of machinery.

There might be a good market there for much of our own farm surplus, if better relations existed between the two countries. Payment might be rather difficult. Yet Soviet Russia, whatever its sins, has never defaulted in payment of debts incurred by it.

$ Buying Barbara

by Julia Child-Addams & Author of "THE CAMP HOUSE"

Barbara did not seem either astonished or offended by his protest. There was not an atom of coquetry about her. She just looked enquiringly at him, the emerald taking all the color from her hair and her eyes.

Chapter 12

Barbara did not seem either astonished or offended by his protest. There was not an atom of coquetry about her. She just looked enquiringly at him, the emerald taking all the color from her hair and her eyes.

"I beg your pardon," Farrell amended. "One of my vanities is that I'm a judge of pictures—" he shifted the three landscapes slightly under his arm—"and that emerald isn't right. It isn't your stone. You should never wear anything but pearls and jade and—perhaps occasionally little old-fashioned sets of garnet or black opal. But mainly pearls."

Mrs. Lodely's burst of laughter crashed out from the doorway. "So now you know, Babs! Pearls, pearls! Poor old Babs!" Her hoarse geniality filled the air. "Fact is, Mr. Armitage, you've not been properly introduced to our Babs. She's Toxeter's only dress-designer and interior decorator and general adviser on Art in the Home and so forth. And the only pearls coming her way are her own pearls of wisdom."

"Cast before swine!" supplemented Armitage, gently. Barbara made no answer. She took from a peg the fur coat that she had been wearing when Armitage first saw her and with a quiet "Tomorrow evening as usual, Judy" she left the little house. Armitage lingered to take leave of Mark's mother.

"Your son is coming up to Town in a few days to stay with me, Mrs. Lodely. I'm hoping you'll come, too!" She looked astonished. "In a few days?"

"On Thursday, to be exact. I'm sending down a car for him."

"This coming Thursday? Oh, but—" She was bewildered and, as he expected, she covered it with her inevitable laugh. Then she swung away from him and went plunging up the stairs.

He slammed her door shut and strode across the pavement. Barbara had got into the car—the Devallet sedan that had brought him down from London to Kings Mallard. Under the light of the street-lamp he saw her eyes wander round its shining interior.

"This is a nice car, Mr. Armitage."

"Why not try her out? You might like her."

"You mean—I may drive this beautiful car a little way? Now?"

She had slid along the seat and was behind the wheel. He got in beside her. In the intimate half-darkness of the car, he noted that she used no perfume but that her hair had a natural fragrance, too delicate to describe.

"I can't drive well," she said. "I don't you see, very often get the chance of driving at all. But I will be very careful."

She had turned out of the road and was heading cautiously for the open country round the bay. "You're perfectly all right. You drive intelligently. Let her out a bit if it amuses you."

"No, I'm not sure of myself. Besides, we mustn't go far. The dance—"

"Wouldn't you rather drive my car than dance with me?"

"Oh yes," she admitted. Then, as he chuckled—"I'm afraid that sounded rude, but when you're a business-person you get rather tired by the end of the day and dancing in a crowded room isn't much fun. You feel too shattered."

She brought the Devallet to a standstill. A second car rattled past them and its lights showed him the faint rose staining her cheeks and the darker gold where the night-wind stirred amongst the roots of her hair.

"Sure you're not cold?"

"Not a scrap. Will you turn her or will you trust me not to scrape anything?"

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO

December 23, 1912—Herman Lubowsky died in Saugerties. Two negroes arrested by the police confessed to robbing residence of Michael Larkin on Stuyvesant street and were held for the grand jury.

Lenora DeCicco badly burned at her home in Glisco and brought to Kingston Hospital.

December 23, 1922—Steamer Newburgh of Central Hudson Line made her last trip of the season.

Ex-Sheriff Zador P. Boice died of acute indigestion at his home on Albany avenue.

James J. Franco, Jr., and Miss Lillian Gordon married.

Erastus DeForest Barlow, of Waterbury, Conn., and Abbie Louise Sperry of this city, married here.

Miss Emma A. Davis and Robert J. Morriam, both of Olive Bridge, married at Willow.

Italy's Millionaires Await

Rome, (AP)—Italy has 15,000 millionaires, a semi-official census has disclosed, but the calculations are based upon the worth currently only a little under 20 to the dollar. Hence the owner of 1,000,000 lire would have approximately $25,000 if he took his money to America.

Benefits Shown in Winter Hay Crops

Not the Least Is Reduction in Fertilizer Costs.

Fall-planted legumes and small grains occupy the land at a time when it would otherwise be bare and exposed to the leaching out of process of soluble plant food, and so the erosion of the soil itself.

While the chief advantage of winter crops is that they furnish a good crop of fresh feed at a time when it is likely to be low, there is another advantage, especially where legumes are grown, that the fertilized soil may be reduced and the land put in such shape that what fertilizer is used will pay better returns.

It is not expected that farmers will have much more money to invest in fertilizers next spring than they had last spring. For that reason it is only good insurance to take advantage of soluble growing weather in winter to fill the land with humus and organic matter.

Limestone and legumes are being rated as important soil builders in North Carolina this season, and indications are that both will be used to a greater extent than in the past, say North Carolina field specialists.

Soybean May Be Most Versatile U. S. Crop

The soybean promises to become America's most versatile crop—highly valuable both industrially and agriculturally. The department has recently completed a collection of nearly 400 soybean products from the Orient as well as America.

The collection shows that a wide variety of products are made from the soybean in America. It is divided into four groups of flour, bean, meal, and oil products. In the flour group are bread, cakes, macaroni, vermicelli, noodles, spaghetti, infant foods, diabetic foods, and beverages such as malted milk. From the bean proper are soy sauce, sprouts, bean milk in fresh, powdered, and canned forms, bean cheese, flour, soybean butter, and meat substitutes. The meal provides animal food such as poultry, hog, cattle, and dog feed, glue, fertilizers, and flour. The oil has proved a fertile field for development and from it are made soaps, ink oils, salad oil, shortening, core oil, used in foundries, rubber substitutes, disinfectants, paints, varnish, chocolate candy, and lecithin; a phosphoric tonic compound.

Alfalfa Statistics

Alfalfa seed production in 1931, amounting to 51,200,000 pounds, was about 25 per cent smaller than in 1930, when the largest crop since 1926 was produced, and 15 per cent smaller than in 1929. Greatest decreases occurred in the more northern producing districts where the drought was more detrimental to the crop than elsewhere. Sales in both spring and fall were smaller than in 1930. Exports fell off sharply. Imports were unusually small, no seed having entered the United States during the second half of 1931. Stocks are more than sufficient to take care of normal requirements.

Fighting Corn Borer

In sections where the European corn borer is found corn should be cut as low as possible. Many of the borers will be found in the lower parts of the stalks, commonly left as stubs, where they are figuring on wintering. Low cutting of silage corn puts them out of the way in the silo, and interferes with their arrangements in other corn, by removing them from the fields. After the corn is cut, deep plowing under of the stubs will handle those left. Otherwise the remnants should be broken up with harrow or disk, raked into windrows and burned.

Agricultural Squibs

Cut the weeds before they go to seed and thus prevent their spread.

Snow is excellent for banking houses. Manure is unsanitary, stains and rots the siding.

A few cents buys enough copper sulphate to worm a flock of sheep. County agents will explain the treatment.

The grain feed situation in the majority of foreign countries is reported considerably better than that of a year ago.

In the test plots at the Ohio State university, Columbus, the hybrid Golden Bantam corn outyielded ordinary commercial Golden Bantam by as much as 300 per cent.

The sheep population of Australia, already the largest of any country in the world, is still increasing. It is estimated that by the end of this year there will be 120,000,000 head there.

About 800,000 boys and girls are participating in 4-H club work in the United States.

Chicago hogs, in the month of October, averaged about $3.60 a hundred, or about 45 cents a hundred less than in September.

Nine farmer-owned auction markets in New Jersey, organized in co-operation with the state department of agriculture, have proved effective in bringing farmers the highest possible prices for their products.

Would Honor Poet's Memory
Despite the fact that it lacks architectural distinction, admirers of the poet Alfred de Vigny are petitioning the French government to preserve the house in which he was born as a historic museum. It is situated in Loches, Touraine, where Louis XI spent much of his time at the chateau in which the cardinal who invented iron cages for prisoners was imprisoned in a large, gilded birdcage suspended from the ceiling.

Distance to New Planetoid
1932 H. A. is not a planet, but a planetoid. Doctor Frost of Yerkes observatory estimated its distance from the earth at about 7,000,000 miles, but its discoverer, Dr. Karl Reinmuth of the University of Heidelberg, believes it to be only 4,000,000 miles distant. It is the closest known heavenly body to the earth, with the exception of the moon. Its diameter is estimated to be no more than 10 miles.

Improvement

The bishop's little granddaughter was enjoying one of his occasional visits, perched on his knee and scrutinizing his face intently. Presently she said: "Grandfather, smile."

He dutifully smiled, and Charlotte continued: "Now, you look much better. A good deal of the time your face looks sad, but the most of the time it's just plain dumb."

Record Tree
A six-year-old slash pine tree 8 inches in diameter has been exhibited in Georgia as an example of the rapid growth of the species in that state, according to the United States forest service. The tree was planted in a field with other slash-pine seedlings in 1926. The other pines have also developed well, but this tree holds the record.

BERETS AND TOQUES INSPIRE MILLINERS

The wide-brimmed view of the hat mode for the moment is something new. It has a bereal inspiration, but differs from this long popular piece of head covering in that on the left side it is cut up into a point with the lines leading to it curving in almost a scroll fashion.

A flower or a pin often is placed in the apex of the V, or again, a narrow piece of ribbon crosses the crown of the head and terminates in a small bow. No hair, or even the lobe of the ear, is visible on the right side of the head, and the left side is not left nearly as exposed as with other the beret or the toque vogue. By means of the evening line to and away from the point of the V it comes further down over the tip of the left ear.

Printed Chiffon Hose Wins Popular Approval

Codes and their mammas are all agog over the new printed chiffon stockings which are being shown in various patterns designed for wear with tweeds, with street costumes, sports clothes and even formal gowns. They answer that fervent and long-standing maiden's prayer for a sports stocking that isn't bulky.

There's stockings in little brown and beige checkerboard checks, for instance, that should be stunning for campus wear, with casual sweaters and skirts and maybe a checkered scarf to match.

There's another brown and beige number printed in a Harrington tweed pattern, which looks sheer and also sporting, and is effective with tweeds.

Tomb Living Quarters for Unemployed Worker

A man who had lived for nearly a year in a tomb and made his bed in a coffin, has been detained by the police of western Poland. A score caused by a report that a ghost had been seen in the cemetery led to investigations by the police. They found that the tomb of an old Polish family named Torbins had been converted into a one-room flat. It contained, among other articles, a stove, a lamp, a chair, and a bookcase. They also found in it an unemployed worker, who said that he had taken up his abode there as he was unable to find other shelter.

His bed had been a metal coffin from which he had evicted the remains of a Torbins of bygone years.

Old Indian Hieroglyphics

Discoveries linking Easter Island in the Pacific with early civilizations in India were recently reported to the French academy of sciences by Paul Pellion. Sir John Marshall, he told the academy, had found hieroglyphics in India estimated to be six thousand years old, and which Prof. Gulliamme de Hevery, French scientist, had identified as corresponding exactly with inscriptions on tablets found more or less in profusion on Easter Island. Professor Hevery thinks that because of their great similarity the two scripts originated from the same source.

Good Memory

Patty and Jean were boasting of how far back they could remember.

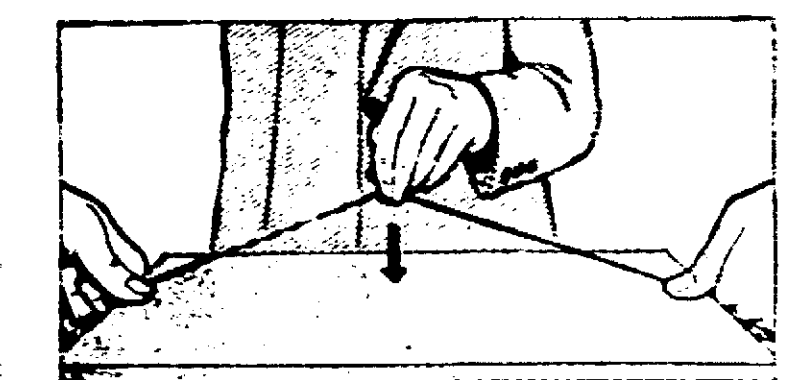

"I remember when we lived in Grandma Hobson's house," announced four-year-old Jean, proudly.

"Jean, you don't either," said Patty, the elder. "Why, you weren't even born when we lived in Grandma Hobson's house."

"Well, I reckon I know that," retorted Jean triumphantly, "but I guess I remember when the rest of you lived there."

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by WILL LINDHOIST

TO MAKE A STRAIGHT LINE WITHOUT USING RULER

TWO PERSONS HOLD ENDS OF RUBBER BAND AFTER CHALK HAS BEEN RUBBED ON IT. THEN YOU STRETCH THE CENTER, RELEASE IT, AND A STRAIGHT LINE WILL APPEAR ON THE TABLE.

A long rubber band and a piece of soft chalk are needed for this trick, and you present it before an audience in this manner: Stand before a card table, and announce that you can make a perfectly straight line across the table without the use of a ruler or any other object with a straight edge. As it is practically impossible to do this with the hand alone, it will puzzle the audience. You bring forth the rubber band, ask two persons each to hold an end, while you rub the chalk along the band. Then request that the band be held at opposite ends of the table, and you grasp the center, which you stretch and release, and it will snap against the table, leaving a straight line. This is the same method that carpenters use in making a chalk line. (Copyright, WILL L. LINDHOIST. WNY Service.)

Beetles Got Their First
Most prominent among creative insects are the most "modern" of them, in the sense that their forms and habits have shown most change in comparatively recent geologic times—the bees and their kin, and the butterflies and moths. These two specialized insect groups have shown more development since the beginning of the age of Mammals than have the members of that most varied group of all insects, the beetles. Plant-dependent beetles had their structures and habits fixed when bees and butterflies were getting started on their modern evolutionary courses.

Kingdom of Kerry
Kerry, the section for Irish Rhymer, is called a kingdom by the Irish, probably ruled by the king of Kerry, for so Queen Victoria once called it. Sea head and single bay, the heart of Irish-speaking Kerry, are the center of a district in which Irish mythology, archeology and history are extraordinarily well represented. The wild coast line is unsurpassable in grandeur and ruggedness and early Christian remains abound. So all around in Kerry, to Valentia Island through lake, Slieve Donard, Waterville, Castle Gregory, Parknasilla, Bann Bay or Ballybunolee, you must go if you would know the realm which is the kingdom of Kerry.—Exchange.

Pecan Production
Pecan growing in southern states has become an extensive industry both in improved and seedling varieties. Georgia in an average year is credited with producing about two-fifths of the "improved" varieties. Texas and Oklahoma harvest two-thirds to four-fifths of the seedling nuts. Pecan production ranges from 25,000,000 to 75,000,000 pounds annually.

CURSE OF KING TUT DEFIED BY CARTER

Noted Egyptologist Laughs at Superstition.

London.—Dr. Howard Carter, sole survivor of that little party which, led by the late Lord Carnarvon, discovered the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, is back once more in Egypt, defying the so-called curse upon all who dare to disturb the resting places of the Pharaohs.

The belief that a curse rests upon all those concerned in the Tut-Ankh-Amen excavation continues to linger, in spite of all the assurance of archeologists and scientists that it is quite irrational.

The last death was that of the Hon. Richard Bethell, son of Lord Westbury, who was acting as secretary to Dr. Carter at the tomb. This was said to be the thirteenth fatality associated in one way or another with the undertaking, beginning with the death of Lord Carnarvon, the principal discoverer of the tomb, who died following an insect bite.

He is Undisturbed.
Despite these deaths and other misfortunes, Dr. Carter seemed not in the least disturbed.

Asked about the progress of Egyptology, he said:

"There are masses of treasures still to be discovered. But, of course, since the 25 kings have been accounted for there will be no world making discoveries such as that of Tut-Ankh-Amen." Mr. Carter found the tomb after nine years of patient searching in the Valley of the Kings. His excavations finally brought to light the mummy of the boy king, lying in a nest of three coffins, the innermost of which was of pure gold.

There also were discovered hundreds of objects entwined with the mummy, the splendor of the whole thing being such as to baffle description. Besides priceless jewels and ornaments, the objects included inscriptions and drawings which have proved of incalculable value.

Other Discoveries.

The Earl of Carnarvon financed his exploration of the Theban necropolis, during which Mr. Carter discovered the valley temple of Hatshepsut, the tomb of Amenhotep I, the cemetery of the eighteenth dynasty queens, the cliff tomb of Queen Hatshepsut, and finally the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen in 1922. In the last discovery Carter was aided by the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York.

Pennsylvania Officials

Ponder Orphan Bridge

Allentown, Pa.—Bridging a small creek just outside of Allentown, on the Philadelphia highway, is an "orphan" bridge, a span nobody owns and for which no one appears willing to be responsible.

The Lehigh Valley Motor club uncovered the bridge's lack of parents when it sought to have the structure widened.

The county commissioners denied ownership. They said the bridge passed from their hands in 1880, when the state highway department took over all bridges along state highway routes. The Trout Creek bridge was among those taken over, the commissioners said.

The state highway department likewise denied ownership. They said the law prevented their taking over bridges within city limits, and claimed the Trout Creek span was within the city of Allentown.

The city government knows nothing about it. The bridge is located in Mountainville, a borough only this year incorporated as part of the city. All concerned have turned to the attorney general's office for aid in solving the parentage of the Trout Creek bridge.

Figures Show Convicts Could Build Own City

Jackson, Mich.—Some one with a flair for statistics has advanced figures to prove his contention that the inmates of Michigan state prison here could establish and build their own prison city on an island in Lake Superior.

Among the 5,700 prisoners, the statistician points out, are 13 sailors who could man the boats transferring the prisoners to the island. Nine civil engineers, inmates of the prison, could survey the land. Five inmate draughtsmen could draw plans for the island city.

Metal to construct the buildings could be mined by inmate miners. The 2,910 men laborers could assist in carrying out the instructions of 27 brick masons, 108 carpenters, 31 electricians, 124 painters, 110 electricians, 12 stone cutters, seven stone masons, 18 steam fitters, 48 plumbers, 18 tin-smiths, 25 metal workers, and 33 wood workers.

With the city completed, the 333 auto drivers and mechanics, 340 farmers, 48 bakers, and 35 butchers could make the land in making the island self-supporting.

El Paso, Texas.—K. A. Dickelmann, manager of an El Paso hotel, says the honest man once sought by Diogenes is Hunter von Mert of Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany. Van Mert walked off with his room key after remaining at Dickelmann's hotel several days, and mailed it back at his own expense from Germany.

POULTRY

COLD WAVES FOUGHT IN POULTRY HOUSES

Warm Buildings Help Birds Fight Disease.

By E. P. TUCKER, Agricultural Engineer, Ohio State University—WNU Service.

Insulating the poultry flock from the low temperatures of winter helps in keeping the birds free from disease and in a good, vigorous condition.

One of the most economical methods of insulating the poultry house is to pack cornstalks around the outside walls. The fodder is best piled at least a foot thick and should be wired securely in place. It may be removed in the spring.

In order to make the insulation effective in the control of sudden temperature changes, the building should be made tight to prevent heat lost through leakage. Doors and windows are best made to fit as snugly as possible. All baffle work or muslin curtains used for ventilation may be replaced with sash. During mild weather, ventilation may be obtained by adjusting the windows.

If insulating board is used in guarding the flock against low temperatures, it may be protected from the chickens by painting it with a cement paste. This can be made by mixing together equal parts of cement and fine sifted sand. Add sour milk until a thick paint consistency is obtained. Do not use water in the mix. It is best to mix only small quantities of the paint at a time. It should be stirred constantly to keep the heavier particles from settling to the bottom. Apply two coats with a stiff brush. Twelve pounds of cement, 12 pounds of sand, and 1 gallon of sour milk will cover 80 square feet if two coats are applied.

Bringing Pullets Back to Production of Eggs

According to Berley Winton, Missouri College of Agriculture, how to get pullets back into production in cold weather after they have gone into a molt in November or December is a question frequently asked. The reason why certain pullets molt is because they do not have the inherent ability to continue to lay during the winter. On the other hand, many pullets go into a molt because of faulty management or incorrect feeding practices. Pullets that lay heavily in the fall often lose body weight and this is thought to be the primary cause of such pullets molting. To develop pullets that are heavy in weight prior to the time they come into production and then feed them in such a manner that they will maintain that weight and continue to lay at the same time is difficult to do.

To get pullets back into laying condition in cold weather is likewise a real problem. The use of electric lights and the feeding of a moist, crumbly mash each day are the two methods commonly employed to hasten production. Both methods have the same effect in that they are conducive to a greater consumption of feed.

When electric lights are available care should be taken to see that they are used regularly—turned on and off at the same time each day. The use of lights in the morning does not require a dimming device and the operator is always at home. Just recently the use of all night lights has been reported with a high degree of success. Such a system calls for the use of 15-watt bulbs rather than a more intense light. This dim light will make it possible for the chickens to eat feed from hoppers at any time. Such lights will also reduce the cost of electric current. One light is used for each 200 square feet of floor space and should be suspended about six feet above the floor.—Missouri Farmer.

Poultry Facts

Each dollar invested in time returns three dollars or more to the pocket-book.

In breeding turkeys, more than with any other poultry, relationship should be avoided. When inbreeding is practiced, lack of vitality, crooked breast and other deformities will result.

Guinea fowls have a tendency to mate in pairs, but one male may be mated successfully with three or four females.

The 1932 crop of turkeys was 13 per cent above that of 1931. It is estimated that 18,000,000 were sent to market.

Although an increase is shown, turkey production in the United States is now only where it was several years ago, when the population of the country was much under the present figure.

No matter how prime the birds are at the conclusion of the fattening period, the premium of one or more may be lost through carelessness in killing and dressing.

The newest luminary in the poultry world is the record-breaking New York single-comb White Leghorn pullet that laid 335 eggs to break the present world's record in weight of eggs. She came within two eggs of equalling the record for the number of eggs established a few years ago by a British Columbia pullet of the same breed.

The Eternal Process

Whether the longer life that is won by new knowledge of diet is pure gain or not remains to be seen. Maybe the surplus is merely to be devoted to study of diet with the thought of prolonging life, and so on.—New York Sun.

Although they had an easy time in the first half, the Spinny Aces came near losing to the Rhinebeck Juniors in the preliminary game at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, Thursday. Trailing 12-26 at the intermission, the Rhinebeck Juniors added more glimmer to their attack in the closing session and came near trimming the Aces who won by the narrow margin of 35-37.

Maroon To Open Season Tonight

The Kingston High School varsity basketball team opens its 1932-33 court campaign against the Alumni tonight in the school gym at 8:15 o'clock. It is said the varsity five is in good shape for the opener and that the Alumni have gathered a potent combination of former players in past years. A preliminary will be staged starting at 7:15, between the Second team and the Faculty five.

Coch Kias would not name a starting lineup yesterday. He said something about having some 15 men on hand for the Alumni tilt and from this group he intends to work with several combinations. The Maroon monitor will be experimenting throughout the contest. From this squad of 15 lads a first string five will be formed and polished up for the coming games in the DUSO League.

Undoubtedly the varsity will be tested to the utmost tonight for the graduates will probably play a good game of basketball and the varsity will have to watch its every step both on defense and offense.

Steamrollers Play Morgans Tonight

The Morgan Repealers lineup to-night at White Eagle Hall against the toughest opposition they have faced to date—the Mountaineers Steamrollers, professional champions of Sullivan county last season. This formidable quintet, headed by "Woody" Wood and Vince Knoll, is expected to put the Morganmen through an exacting battle, and is favored to come out on the heavy end of the score.

Manager Dulin of the home club will use his regular list of players: Merritt, "Chicken" Smith and Niles, forwards; Bruck, center; Mills, Hoffman and Joe Dulin, guards.

Preceding the feature there will be a game between two junior teams, starting at 7:30. The headliner is scheduled for 8:30.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Hearing of Whales.

Most people searching for a whale's ears would probably give up in despair before they had examined more than the first half-acre of the beach. But behind the tiny ear openings at each right-hand corner of the whale's open eye are two large hollow bones nearly six inches across. Sight and hearing are the whale's only means of knowing a strange coast, for he is practically without a sense of smell.

Spinny's Outscore Rhinebeck, 49-44; Van Etten Stars

In one of the most sensational basketball games ever seen at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, the Spinny Aces defeated the famous Rhinebeck Juniors in a crowded house Thursday night, outscoring the Rhinebeck county cage experts 49-44. The Spinny was the second in three years for Rhinebeck, according to the team's record, and put it on an even plane with the Spinny club which it recently shellacked in a tilt across the Hudson.

Training the home club by the tally of 22-29 at the end of the first half, the Rhinebeck brigade launched an effective offensive in the third quarter and deadened the issue 33 all during the frame. Then the Spinny's added more pressure in the closing frame, which was one of the flashiest ever played at Pythian, and surpassed the visitors by five points, as shown by the final score, 49-44.

"HING" VAN ETEN.

Outstanding in the Spinny attack was "Bing" Van Etten who scored 20 points from the field. Next came Dan Joyce with 15 and Hank Krum with 13. Dutch Ruge, Rhinebeck center, and opponent of Krum, registered the same number of points as his rival, indicating that the two pivot men waged a hectic battle. Asher, star guard of the Dutchess team, scored 12 points besides playing a fine floor game. Dulin and Al Short, Spinny guards, also performed well in the defensive roles.

Next Thursday the Spinny's will face another hard-fighting quintet in Steve Marone's Highland American Legion. This group of basketballers defeated the widely heralded Detroit Clowns and is considered as one of the best in Ulster county. Monday night the Legionnaires will be guests of Pete Bruck's All Stars at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, in a Christmas game.

Last night's box score:

Spinny's.	F.G.	F.P.	T.P.
Joyce, rf	6	3	15
Van Etten, lf	10	0	20
Krum, c	6	1	13
Dulin, rg	0	1	1
A. Short, lg	0	0	0
Total	22	5	49

Score at end of first half, Spinny's 29, Rhinebeck 22. Referee Davitt.

Trojans Concentrate On Pitt's Defense

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (AP).—Coach Howard Jones is inclined to believe the defense of the Pittsburgh football team which his Southern California fans meet at Pasadena January 2 probably is just as strong as that of the Trojans.

At least he ordered another extended workout today on offensive drill after concentrating on this part of his preparations for the game for two days.

Although the Panthers are considerably lighter on the forward wall than the Trojans, three powerful teams—Army, Notre Dame and Nebraska—were held by them.

Anyway, Coach Jones has been using Homer Griffith at fullback in the secret workouts a good share of the time with the idea of strengthening Troy's touchdown punch. It doesn't mean that Griffith will start at fullback.

In fact, Homer is almost certain to begin the football festivities at quarter, going to full later when Irving Warburton is sent into the fray. When Griffith is shifted over in favor of Warburton, Gordon Clark, the starting fullback probably will be moved to left half, his old post, because of his blocking ability and experience.

Will Turn Professional.

St. Louis, Dec. 23 (AP).—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson announced today her reinstatement as an amateur by the Southern A. A. U. will not affect her decision to turn professional. "I do not in the least regret the decision I have made," she said in a statement issued to the press as she boarded a Chicago bound train.

Bigelow Five at Armory Tonight in Game With Soldiers

The Bigelows, who crushed the Monticello Five 46-12, last night, thus adding another victory to their string of 12, are expected to give Lieutenant James Byrne's Battery A boys a hard test when they play them at the armory tonight in the regular weekly cage feature.

With victories to their credit over Monticello, Rosendale Firemen, Morgan Repealers, Beacon Pros, Catskill, Tannersville and several other outstanding clubs, the Bigelows are favorites over the Artillerymen. However, the soldiers hope to do their best in the contest which will probably be the last basketball game in the old armory.

Preliminary to the Bigelow battle, the second team of Battery A will meet the Knights of Columbus quintet. Starting times of the games are 7 and 8 o'clock. Dancing will follow with music by the Paramount Broadcasters. The usual prizes will be given to the best dancers in several classes.

Opposing lineups: Bigelows—Charlie Brice, George Harris, Schackett, Ribenberg, Benjamin, Gilmore and Till. Battery A—R. Kieffer, Zates, C. Kieffer, Letus and Costello.

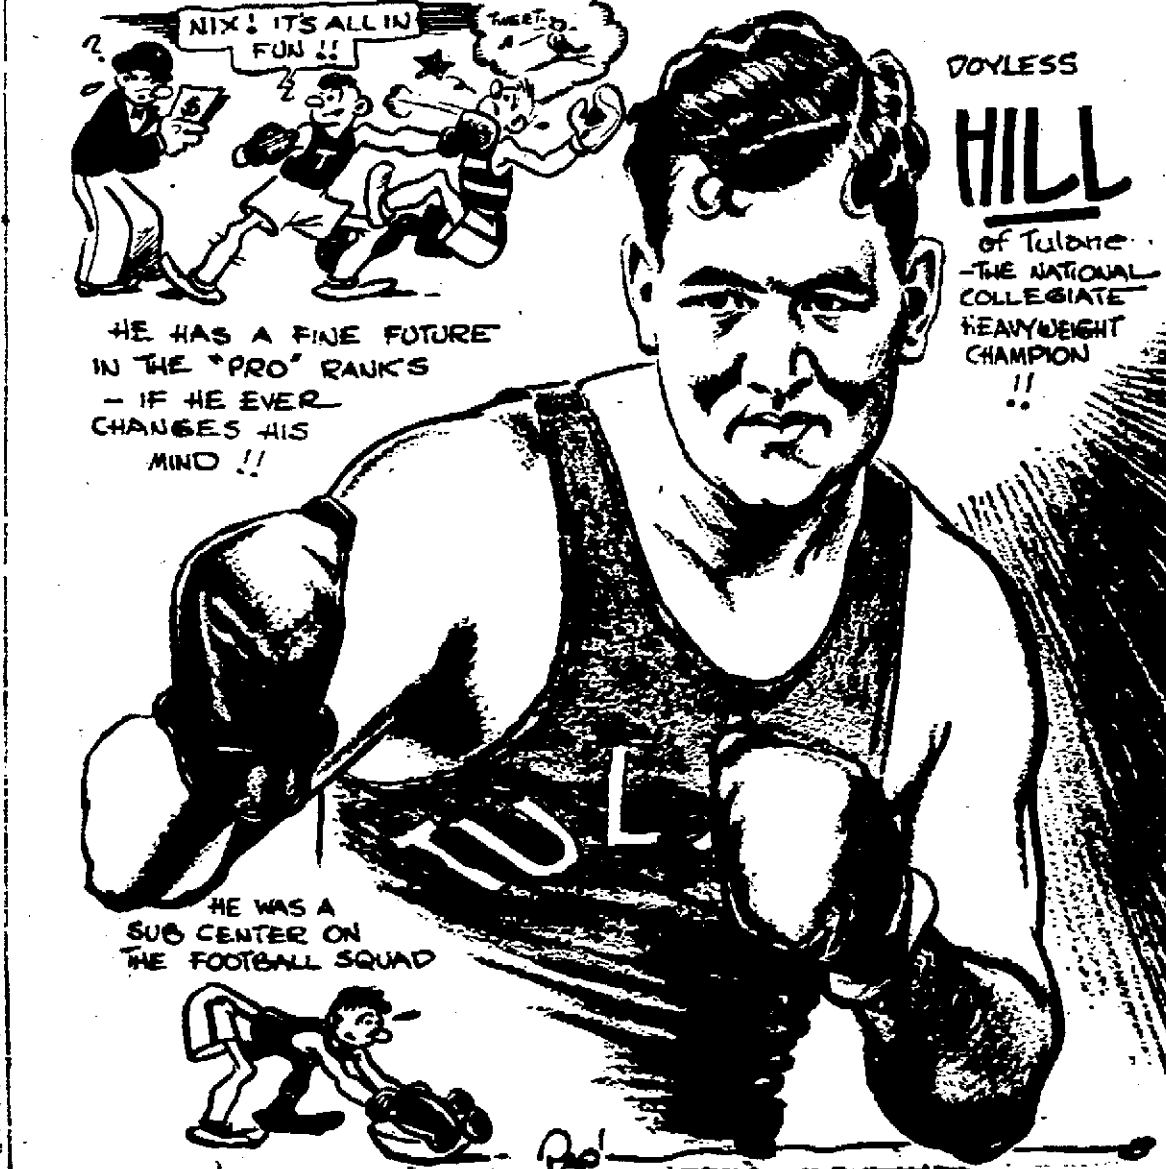

Silvernail's Five At Highland Club

At Smith's Hall, Highland, to-night, Sid Silvernail's All Stars will oppose the Highland American Legion team in a basketball attraction that is expected to draw a capacity crowd. There will be a preliminary and dance.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Fred Planthaber, playing in championship form, easily defeated Bob East in a Kaslich tournament game Wednesday by the one-sided score of 100-70. East started fast, but faltered after reaching the 40 point mark. Planthaber built up a commanding lead with several runs of 10 or better. The highest run was 14, each player scoring that amount. The game was played in fast time, taking only one hour and five minutes to complete.

Tonight John Mayone, who upset Planthaber once, defeated Julius Teller in what is expected to be an interesting match. Teller won the city championship last year.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

Colonials Defeated.

The Kingston Colonials, who are scheduled to play the Napanoch Guards at Ellenville Monday night, lost to the Athens Five at that village, Wednesday, 30-47. Teetsell with 11 points did the heaviest shooting for the Kingstonians.

Bruckmen's Game With Highland Attracting Fans

Basketball fans of this vicinity are eagerly awaiting the contest between the All Stars of Pete Bruck and Steve Marone's Highland American Legion at B. W. S. Hall, Monday night. These two clubs, expected to fight it out for the championship of Ulster county at the end of the cage season, will pack the High Falls hall to overflowing, according to indications.

Having defeated the celebrated Detroit Clowns, the Highlanders believe themselves superior to the Bruckmen, who bowed to Buster Kenny's "Little Celtics," and plan on proving their contention when they display their methods at B. W. S. The Bruck contingent, that won all of its games except the one with the Clowns, considers the lone upset a duke and contemplates ringing up a victory over the Highlanders by a decisive margin.

Both clubs will use their regular lineups: Bruck All Stars—Jimmy Merritt, Norm Niles, Herb Van Deusen, Vince Knoll, "Woody" Wood and Pete Bruck, Highland—Tom Murphy, Steve Marone, Ken Craiz, "Bun" Hasbrouck and Jack McAuler. Starting time of the game is 8:30. Previous to it there will be a girls' contest, beginning at 7:30. Dancing will conclude the evening's program.

Games and Dance At B. W. S. Tonight

A crowd is expected at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, tonight to witness the basketball game between the Stone Ridge Big Five and the Kingston Five, two teams presenting formidable lineups. Plenty of action is promised. There will be a preliminary at 7:30 o'clock. Following the feature at 8:30 there will be dancing.

Maxies Sign for Match in Chicago Or New York City

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The monopoly Madison Square Garden has enjoyed on prime heavyweight attractions since the days of Tex Rickard was threatened today from a new and formidable quarter.

William Harrison Dempsey announced yesterday he had signed Max Schmeling and Max Baer for a 15-round bout sometime in June.

The site was not specified but Dempsey said it would be either New York or Chicago. Other cities will figure in the situation only if some unexpected hitch develops in Dempsey's present plans.

Other promoters have sought to "buck" the Garden in the past but most had two strikes on them before they went to the plate, either because the Garden had the best locations or the best fighters, or both, tied up with air-tight contracts.

Not so with Dempsey. Jack has his fighters—and they are good ones—safely signed and through his association with Tim Mara, he will have his choice either of the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium should he decide to stage the fight here. Mara has the two big ball parks under lease for boxing and, through his Aram A. C., is duly licensed in this state as a promoter.

Chicago, it was understood, is genuinely anxious to stage the fight as a world's fair attraction and probably will have some persuasive arguments for Dempsey's ear.

The Garden, in the meantime, finds itself where it has the heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, safely under contract, but no outstanding rival for him to meet. Under the terms of the contract, the Garden is obliged to find some one for Sharkey to fight by June 20. With Schmeling and Baer both unavailable, the Garden will be forced to look elsewhere, possibly in the general direction of Primo Carnera.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

It has taken the winter baseball pow-wows to bring out some of the year's best stories, mellowed and improved upon by the re-telling.

Ed Barrow of the Yankees tells one about Lou Gehrig and Charley Ruffing in the opening game of the world series with the Cubs.

Lou, it seems, was all excited, manifesting his old college spirit, while Ruffing, the ex-miner, was somewhat bored by Gehrig's exuberance.

During the game Lou kept going over to the box, patting Charley on the back and reminding him that he only needed to "show 'em the old stuff" and "bear down well do the rest."

In the sixth inning Gehrig apparently detected a slight tendency on Ruffing's part to "tumble." "Stay right in there, Red; we've got them on the run," Lou informed the unruffled Ruffing.

The pitcher looked at Gehrig in a matter-of-fact way, and said: "Say, Lou, what town are we in?" "Say, Lou, what town are we in?" "Say, Lou, what town are we in?" "Say, Lou, what town are we in?"

This floored Gehrig. He did not come over to pat Ruffing on the back even once thereafter.

Clark Convinces 'Em.

The 1932 professional football season has furnished convincing proof to the East and Middle West that Early Harry (Dutch) Clark of Colorado College was not the recipient of over-enthusiastic recognition when he was named All-America quarterback on the 1925 team sponsored by The Associated Press.

This was the only team to include Clark when the all-star compilations were made four years ago, but even then his exploits were beginning to attract notice beyond the Rocky Mountain Conference, where he ran wild for three years. His first sortie was to the Pacific Coast for the annual East-West game in 1928, where he impressed critics with his all-around ability.

With the Portsmouth (Ohio) Spartans this year Clark achieved the best all-around record of any back in the National League circuit, sharing with Glen Pressnell, former University of Nebraska halfback, the offensive drive that routed the famous Green Bay Packers in the deciding game of the professional season.

This was an upset comparable to Pittsburgh's defeat of Notre Dame; in fact it probably stunned at least 100 experts who already had named the Packers as one of the three outstanding teams in any sport for 1932.

Popularize Pro Game.

On the whole the Green Bay Packers do not need to make any apologies for their current downfall. This team has done more than any other factor in popularizing professional football and attract fans who appreciate technical football at its best.

It has, in a way, done for the pro grid what the New York Yankees did for baseball. Like the Yankees, the Packers have demonstrated that there is always an end to "invincibility."

WILBUR CLUB AND FULLERS PLAY TONIGHT.

Manager Lynch and his Wilbur Men's Club will leave Twaalfskill for home this evening at 6:45 for Chichester, where the Wilburites are to clash with the team of mountain-climbers that defeated them earlier in the season. Accompanying the Wilbur Club will be the Fuller Girls, who are booked for a return match with the Chichester Girls whom they outscored by a 21-6 margin previously. The bus will stop at the central post office at 7 o'clock to pick up those who do not leave from Wilbur.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Too! Too!

Chicago—What the country really needs, in the opinion of Gussie Marino-Rossi, baritone of the Philadelphia Opera Company, is more melodious railroad whistles. Arriving here after a railroad trip he said: "If only the locomotive whistles were a soothing middle C, rather than the rasping of a basso, oh, yes, the entire country would benefit."

"Citizens' dispositions would be milder; farm cows might give sweeter milk."

"The possibilities are endless."

Starting Day Wrong.

Chicago—Mild husbands suing their wives and growled at them.

It was breakfast time on Chicago's South Side, and it was the taste in the coffee that made the husbands growling at their wives.

Arthur E. Gorman, water purification engineer, found the husbands were drinking crude carbolic acid. He said it got into the water probably from refuse discharged from ammonia stills of by-product coke plants.

Nature Does a Trick.

Fort Myers, Fla.—James A. Hendry is a bit astonished at the varieties of Nature.

He operates a nursery and he wears had been experimenting with orchids. It's a tedious process for a man is lucky if he gets a hundred and gets one mature specimen.

Yesterday he decided to use the old automobile he reserves for trip over rough roads in search of wild orchids. It had stood idle for several months. There, growing right out of the ragged upholstery, was a perfect orchid.

Now Hendry can't use his car until the orchid is old enough to transfer to a pot.

Slam for Sam.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Chalkup a grand slam for your Uncle Sam.

A. H. Wilkerson, international revenue collector, disclosed that Wisconsin residents are going in for cards in a big way these winter evenings. They paid $715,767 taxes this year at 10 cents a pack.

James Was Smart.

Pittsburgh—A car, carrying three men, drove into Chester James's filling station. James, wearing a well-filled money belt, complied with the order to "fill 'er up," but, as he drew the hose out of the rear tank, he "got to thinking" and called an assistant.

"Collect from those mugs," said James. "I'm going." The assistant going to the front of the car, found himself looking into a revolver barrel. He had no money so the man, disgusted, drove away.

"Bandits," philosophized James. "Shouldn't look like bandits."

A Little Smug.

Elkhorn, Wis.—The white horse Ralph Tolkan looked upon made him see red.

One day last fall he saw the white horse on a farm and offered to trade his buckskin horse for it, but the farmer said no. Came another day recently and he saw the farmer again.

"How's the white horse?" Tolkan asked.

"Not quite so spry and a little stiffer," he quoted the farmer, whereupon a trade was arranged.

Later Tolkan came before a judge and said: "As he's said before, it was a little stiffer than usual. I went back to the barn and there was the white horse—stone dead."

Frank, Anyway!

Salt Lake City—Joseph Chabot, 23, walked into police headquarters presented Capt. George H. Parker a pistol and said he stole it, with the intention of committing a robbery. He told the officer he had walked the streets in search of a victim but each time lost his courage. He was held for investigation.

ONLY ONE WAY OF BUILDING UP HERD

Retain Offspring of Proved Producers.

The careful selection of cattle to bring about better and better butterfat production during each succeeding generation has had a startling effect, when the figures from the inauguration of the movement in 1924 to 1930 are compared. In 1926 the average butterfat produced in a year by an average cow was 215 pounds. In 1930 this figure had increased to 302 pounds, or nearly a 50 per cent increase.

This figure for butterfat doesn't mean butter itself, because the yield of butter is always greater than the weight of the butterfat. For instance, figuring from the butterfat test in 40 per cent cream the total weight of the butterfat is multiplied by 1.2 and the resultant figure is the yield of butter. In the case of whole milk, the factor used in estimating the yield is 1.18.

To use definite figures, 1,000 pounds of 40 per cent cream would represent, of course, 400 pounds of butterfat. This cream, when churned, would yield 450 pounds of butter.

The manner in which the butterfat yield is increased is to take offspring of known producers of large percentages of butterfat and build up herds from them. In each succeeding generation those which show a retrogression or halt in the progress toward better yield are discarded and only the better producers used for breeding purposes. Of course, most of the effort is centered on sires which are offspring of big butterfat producers.—Exchange.

Ration's Effect on the Nutritive Value of Milk

When the feed supplied a cow does not contain enough mineral matter to supply the milk she produces with the mineral constituents normally found therein, she draws upon her own bones to supply the amount lacking. Some investigators hold that the addition of inorganic minerals to the ration does not help the cow, because she is unable to assimilate minerals in that form. But she can assimilate minerals held in organic combination. This is one reason why legume hays, which contain a relatively high percentage of mineral matter, are so valuable.

For two years the Ohio experiment station has been feeding milk to rats from cows that were fed a ration very high in protein and from cows that were fed a ration very low in protein, with identically the same results. This was merely another way of testing the nutritive value of milk secreted by cows fed different rations with respect to their protein content. Calves fed on this same milk did equally well. In other words these tests, conducted with a view of studying the biological qualities of milk, again demonstrated that its composition is not altered by the nature of the feed the cow consumes.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Gold Medal Winners

Recent winners of American Jersey Cattle club gold medal awards are E. M. Sherman, Charles City, Iowa, on Tormentor's Brownie Bell, with 514 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; J. N. Martin, New Providence, Iowa, on Ayredale's Pure Gold's Nina, with 764 pounds of butterfat in a year; Sir Owl's Countess' Cactus, owned by W. H. Eddy, of Howard Lake, Minn., with 620 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; The Elms Oxford Lady, owned by Elmer E. Keyt, of Lakeview, Mich., with 610 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; and Fomasa 2nd's Beauty, owned by G. H. McKinstry, of Washington, Pa., with 623 pounds of butterfat in 305 days.—Successful Farming.

DAIRY NOTES

Other things being equal, the more clover or alfalfa a dairyman gives his cows, the less protein he needs to purchase for balancing his grain mixture.

After calves are six months of age they will make normal growth on grain and hay. Pasture of good quality, abundant in quantity, is enough for heifers nine months or more of age.

Dairy rations do not need to contain as much high-priced protein as was commonly thought a few years ago. In the light of recent experiments of E. S. Savage of Cornell university, New York.

Legume hays and silage both produce the amount of grain required to produce milk and thus reduces feeding costs and increases profits.

Cows that go on pasture too early because of lack of available roughage are likely to be underfed throughout all the summer months.

The better the feeder understands his cows, the characteristics of feeds and the general principles involved, the better able he will be to make the changes as the need arises.

WIFE KILLS SELF AND CHILDREN TO LET ACTOR REWED

Modern Marital Tragedy That Rivals the Weirdest of Fiction.

Woodmere, N. Y.—A modern marital tragedy was played recently in the Long Island home of Guy Phillips, English actor and dramatic coach, when his wife, Jean, killed herself and her two children to clear the way for her husband's love for another woman.

It might have been written by Eugene O'Neill, the story told to Police Inspector Harold R. King of Nassau county by the young husband, who was overcome by gas after he found the bodies of his wife and their children, nine-year-old Norma and three-year-old "Chubby," dead in their gas-filled bedroom.

All Died Together.

The three had dinner together in the Phillips home, he said—himself, his wife and the other woman, Mrs. Joseph J. Seltzer, whose husband recently had brought an allegation of affectionate suit for $25,000 against the actor. She was invited by Mrs. Phillips.

Mrs. Phillips told the actor: "You must decide between us and her. You have a wonderful future. I don't want to stand in the way, but I can't go on like this."

After dinner all three went to a movie. Phillips took Mrs. Seltzer home and returned to find that his wife had locked herself and the children in her bedroom.

Smells Gas; Enters Room.

Toward morning he awoke, smelling gas, and broke into the room. His wife lay dead on the floor with the children. Phillips, overcome by the gas, dropped the receiver as he telephoned police.

District Attorney Edwards said: "It was a tragedy of sacrificing love. I am convinced Mrs. Phillips was trying to clear the road to happiness for her husband. The case is closed."

Murders Rivals After Five-Year Wait in Jail

Berlin.—Five years ago Herr Augustus Decker shot his wife when he discovered that she was unfaithful. He took deliberate aim and shot off the lower part of her nose; a second bullet tore away the lower part of her jaw. He was tried and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment.

His exemplary conduct in prison led to his pardon, and he was recently liberated.

But throughout these last five years he had been waiting to wreak revenge on two former admirers of his wife, Dr. Carl Boes, an eminent medical practitioner, and Herr Bucholtz, a goldsmith.

Decker went to the residence of Doctor Boes. When the physician opened the door, Decker whipped out a revolver and shot him dead.

Decker then fled to the railway station and went by train to Duisburg, where his wife's other admirer lived. He rang the bell at the goldsmith's home and, when a man appeared, he asked him whether he was addressing Herr Bucholtz.

"Yes," was the reply, and immediately Decker shot him dead.

Police caught Decker as he was boarding a train for Berlin.

Learns Railroad Bridge Is Not Best Short Cut

Marion, Kan.—Not since the last circus came to town did Marion enjoy so thoroughly an exciting incident as was provided by young John Wheeler's effort to ride his horse across a railroad bridge.

The right of way was an inviting prospect to John's home as he returned from a visit with a friend. He did well until he came to a bridge.

The horse's feet, all four of them, dropped between the ties. It was nearly train time. Running to a nearby house, John sounded the alarm and the citizenry turned out en masse to effect the rescue.

One man hastened to flag a now overdue train. Word was sent to the section foreman, who brought flares to stop another train due from the south.

Several men set to work removing the horse's shoes and hoisting him while they lifted him bodily from the bridge.

But John did not desert his mount. Throughout the period of suspense he sat with the animal's head in his lap, a look of despair on his face.

He promised, after the episode, to heed the officials' warning to use the highways for horseback riding.

Swallows 25 Brilliants, Then Calls for Surgeon

Redondo Beach, Calif.—When Mrs. Margaret Keller lost a brooch 1 1/2 inches in length set with 25 brilliants she consulted a surgeon instead of a detective.

Now she is recovering from an abdominal operation for its removal. Mrs. Keller said hereafter she will leave her jewelry on a dresser instead of holding it in her mouth.

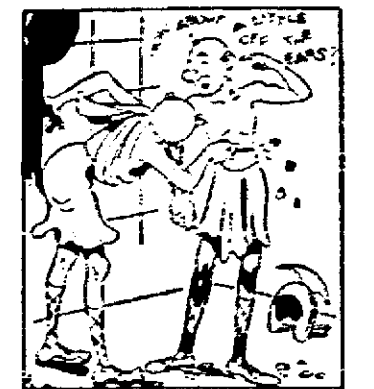

Burglar Leaves Milk

Evansville, Ind.—An obliging burglar obeyed the order of Mrs. W. T. Creek, who caught him leaving the house with a bottle of milk. He edged his way back to the kitchen, replaced the milk, and fled with some small change he had taken from a purse.
